

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

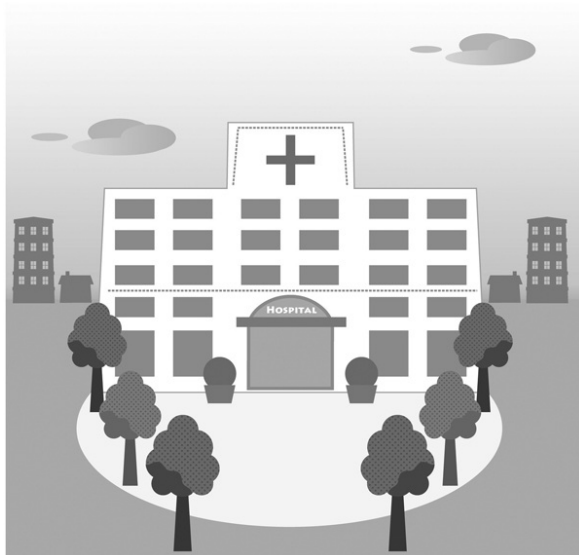

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

It's such a modern hospital!

Learning Outcome

Describe the reasons for or results of events or actions in spoken or written texts, in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What are the hospitals like in your city?
- What changes would you like to see in the medical system in your country?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about social issues, beliefs and opinions.
- I can talk about things that had happened.
- I can talk about the result of an action or event.

Let's Explore!

Florence Nightingale: The Lady with the Lamp

* This nickname was given to Florence, often seen looking in on soldiers by lamplight at night.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Although some people become famous quietly, they do manage to change the world. Florence Nightingale changed the world quietly. Florence was born in the city of the same name, Italy in 1820. Her father was such a modern thinker that he decided that his daughter should have a good education. As soon as she was ready, he had taught her languages, literature, history, and mathematics. She loved her studies from the moment she had begun them. Until Florence had decided to become a nurse, her parents were happy with her decision. They felt that nursing wasn't a profession for rich women. They wanted her to get married. She got offers of marriage, but she was so persistent in wanting to be a nurse, that when she was 31, her father agreed to let her become one.

In 1853, Britain entered the Crimean War where so many British soldiers were dying in Turkey that help was needed. The fighting was difficult. Soldiers also died of cholera and malaria. Immediately Florence had decided to travel to Turkey with other nurses to help the soldiers. There were such unsanitary conditions in the military hospitals that she was shocked. Before she had cleaned and organized the hospital, it was conducive to the spread of virulent disease. The food for patients was so unappealing that she had bought fruit and vegetables with her own money. She had also bought hospital equipment. It wasn't until she had demanded that the equipment, beds, mattresses and walls be scrubbed and kept clean that the numbers of dying soldiers had fallen. Suddenly the mortality rate had plummeted from 60% to 2.2%. Florence was such a devoted nurse that she was often seen at night walking the halls carrying a lamp, doing her rounds.

That is how she came to be known as 'the Lady with the Lamp'.

After the war, Florence had continued to work to improve conditions in hospitals. She set up nursing schools and wrote books. She fought for women's rights. When Florence died at the age of 90, she had done so much for the world that it was a different place.

Let's Practice!

What were the results?

Instructions: Circle the correct word or phrase to complete the sentence.

1. Her father was such a modern thinker than he decided / then he decided / that he decided that his daughter should have a good education.
2. She got offers of marriage, but she was so persistence / so persistent / so persist in wanting to be a nurse that when she / than when she / then when she was 31, her father agreed to let her become one.
3. In 1853, Britain entered the Crimean War where so many / so much / so little British soldiers were dying in Turkey than help / then help / that help was needed.
4. There were such sanitary / such unsanitary / such sanitation conditions in the military hospital then that she was shocked.

Let's Practice!

Before or after?

Instructions: Read the sentences. Write the correct form of the verb in parentheses.

1. As soon as she was ready, he had _____ (to teach) her languages, literature, history, and mathematics. She loved her studies from the moment she had _____ (to begin) them.
2. Until Florence had _____ (to decide) to become a nurse, her parents were happy with her decisions.
3. Immediately, Florence had decided _____ (to travel) to Turkey with other nurses to help the soldiers.
4. She had _____ (to clean) and _____ (to organize) the hospital because the uncleanness was conducive to the spread of virulent disease.
5. It wasn't until she had _____ (to demand) that the equipment, beds, mattresses and walls be scrubbed and kept clean that the numbers of dying soldiers had _____ (to fall).
6. After the war, Florence had _____ (to continue) to work to improve conditions in hospitals.

Extension Activity

Talk about the medical system in your city and country.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Write down a few points (both positive and negative) that you would like to discuss about the medical system in your country.
- Back up each point with an example and say what had happened.
- Practice stating your points and backup examples.
- Discuss your ideas with a partner or group.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I write points about the medical system in my city and country.

☐ ☐

I find evidence to support my points.

☐ ☐

I discuss my ideas and give feedback on others' ideas.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- modern thinker (noun): person who advocates or practices a departure from traditional styles or values
e.g. Her father was such a modern thinker that he decided that Florence should have a good education.
- cholera (noun): an infectious and often fatal bacterial disease of the small intestine
e.g. Soldiers also died of cholera and malaria.
- malaria (noun): fever caused by a parasite that invades the red blood cells
e.g. Soldiers also died of cholera and malaria.
- virulent (adjective): extremely severe or harmful in its effects e.g. Before she had cleaned and organized the hospital, it was conducive to the spread of virulent disease.
- unappealing (adjective): not inviting or attractive e.g. The food for patients was so unappealing that she had bought fruit and vegetables with her own money.
- mortality rate (noun): the number of deaths in a given area or period, or from a particular cause e.g. Suddenly the mortality rate had plummeted from 60% to 2.2%.
- rounds (noun): an act of visiting each of a number of people or places e.g. Florence was such a devoted nurse that she was often seen at night walking the halls carrying a lamp, doing her rounds.

Learning Points

The Past Perfect with Other Time Expressions

You can use different time expressions with the Past Perfect tense to refer to events that occurred before others in the past.

Let's look at different examples to see how you can use the Past Perfect with various time expressions.

as soon as immediately the moment

*I drove to the hospital the moment I had gotten the text message about the car accident.
The moment I had gotten the text message about the car accident, I drove to the hospital.*

Which action happened first? As soon as/immediately/the moment + past perfect tells you the first action in these sentences.

before

Before I had decided on a ring for my fiancée, I looked at several pictures of rings with her mother and sisters.
I looked at several pictures of rings with her mother and sisters before I had decided on a ring for my fiancée.*

Which action happened first? Before + past perfect tells you the second action in these sentences.

until/till

I discussed several different vacation spots with my friends until/till we had chosen where to go on holiday.

What about in this sentence? Until/till + past perfect tells you that this action may come after the other action in the main clause.

Examples:

- As soon as she was ready, he had taught her languages, literature, history, and mathematics.
- Until Florence had decided to become a nurse, her parents were happy with her decisions.

Learning Points

Result Clause: Such/So That

You can talk about the results of actions or situations by using structures with so that and such.

When you want to talk about the effect of something or the result, you can use:

- such + adjective + noun + that
- so + adjective/adverb + that

Roberto was such a handsome man that people often mistook him for a celebrity or a supermodel.

Maria was so tired that she went to bed without even changing into her pyjamas.

The snow fell so heavily that it was impossible to see a few feet in front of you.

- such + a + adjective + noun + that OR
- so + adjective + a + noun + that

You only use these structures with a singular noun that follows a/an. Remember to change the order of the article a/an and the noun when you use so.

It was such a windy day that thousands of homes were left without electricity when trees tore down overhead power lines.

It was so windy a day that thousands of homes were left without electricity when trees tore down overhead power lines.

You can also use so at the beginning of your sentence. This is more for emphasis of the adjective and noun. If you use so at the beginning of your sentence, the position of the verb changes.

He was so rich that he could have bought a private jet for each member of his family.

So rich was he that he could have bought a private jet for each member of his family.

Examples:

- She got offers of marriage, but she was so persistent in wanting to be a nurse, that when she was 31, her father agreed to let her become one.
- There were such unsanitary conditions in the military hospital that she was shocked.

