Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Describe the reasons for or results of events or actions in spoken or written texts, in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- How has social media helped activism?
- What is the best form of social media to draw attention to humanitarian efforts?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about things that happened or had happened.
- I can talk about when or why something happened.
- I can contrast the main idea of a statement using words like although.

Let's Explore!

The need for philanthropists, humanitarians and benefactors is greater than ever.

* A "philanthropist" is a person who donates money and time for the good of the people.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Although human beings have been fighting inequality and racism, and working towards justice for all, there are always more issues that arise. After the first humanitarian organization, the Red Cross, was founded in 1863, the role of humanitarians became increasingly necessary. Today, because technology and social media have advanced, the response to more recent crises such as the tsunami in Japan, the wars in Bosnia, Rwanda and Somalia, and the countless other disasters affecting people all over the world, has been huge.

Just before the world's attention was drawn to the attacks on the Twin Towers in New York City, the United Nations Global Conference on Racism was held. The conference was a step in the right direction, but the event following was not. Still, the humanitarian effort in response to the event was incredible.

Such a response was also evident when the 2010 earthquake in Haiti occurred. Doctors Without Borders have been working there since 1991 and have continued to do so on a much larger scale so that the destitute victims of the earthquake can rebuild.

The political unrest and activism in the era of The Civil Rights Movement educated people about racism and basic human rights. Unfortunately, Amnesty International has said that racism is on the rise today. The social issues have become larger with the increase in population, and though we have had good responses to disasters that occur, we still need to learn to prepare for a problem rather than only respond to it.

As humans we face varying degrees of adversity. We need to be empathetic and compassionate towards each other. It seems that we all have a role to play to ensure that people are treated with dignity, respect and equality.

Let's Practice!

We must continue our fight for equality!

Instructions: Circle the correct answer to complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. Although/Despite human beings have been fighting inequality and racism and working towards justice for all, there are always more issues that arise.
2. So that/Although we have had good responses to disasters that occur, we still need to learn to prepare for a problem rather than only respond to it.
3. Even if/Therefore the humanitarian effort is great, there is always more that can be done.

Let's Practice!

Humanitarian organizations save lives!

Instructions: Complete the sentences with the phrases in the Word Bank. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

The Narrative Tenses - A Review

You can use narrative tenses to relate events in a story.

The most common narrative tenses are the Simple Past, Past Continuous, and the Past Perfect.

You can use them in several ways and to express various relationships between past events.

Past Simple

Form	Use	Examples
Most regular verbs add -ed She watched I worked	For completed actions at a definite time in the past or for completed actions in a story. To describe events that happened over a period of time in the past, but not now.	Lucas worked at the bar all day yesterday. I watched the ballet on TV.

Past Continuous

Form	Use	Examples
Past simple of to be (was/were) + present participle (verb + -ing) I was watching You were talking	To talk about two actions that were happening at the same time using while. To show that an action was happening (or was interrupted) when another action occurred using when. To describe the scene or background when telling a story.	You were doing work on the computer while my aunt was putting up the Christmas tree. James was washing the dishes when his roommate came home. (The action that interrupts is usually expressed using the simple past tense.) The sun was shining and it was a beautiful day to have a picnic.

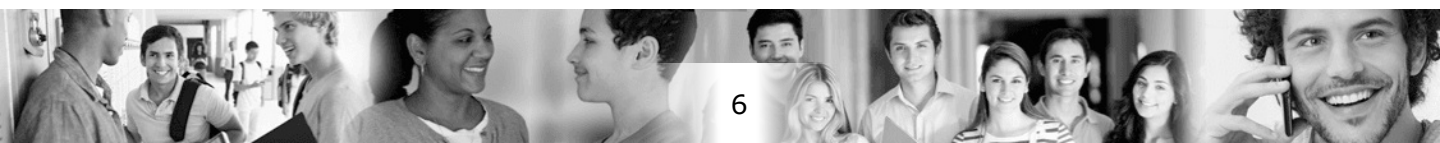

Learning Points

Past Perfect

Form	Use	Examples
Past simple of to have (had) + past participle (verb + -ed) You had talked	For actions that happened before a previous action in the past. To describe the sequence of events using when or as soon as.	I had visited Spain with my family before I went there on my honeymoon. When/ As soon as I had eaten dinner, my mother served dessert.
